EDITOR'S LETTER

Hello out there in our Western Swing Community. I wanted to throw a short newsletter together so everyone knows WE ARE STILL HERE!

We are coming up on an unfortunate anniversary here at the Western Swing Society. March, 2020 was our last dance before Covid shut us down. The list of folks that this has affected is endless and I hope that all will be back to normal soon. Normal being that we will all be more careful when we socialize.

Personally, I had it and struggled for 3 weeks. I was not hospitalized but it was no fun. I know that I was very fortunate not to have had any long term effects. It did make me realize that we were wise not push the dance forward and be patient about starting up again. This will pass and we will get back to pickin' and dancin' again soon.

Behind the scenes our President, Rex Barnes is still coming up with plans to open and doing what he can to keep our board intact and thinking ahead.

Rex Barnes

Hope to see you soon, Ronnie Elkan (Editor)

Thanks to all that are keeping the organization going by sending in your dues. It's not that we need the money now, but when we are allowed to have our dances I'm sure we will be operating in the red until we get it going again. I'm up for the challenge as well as all the rest of you are. I can tell by the wonderful support WSS is getting from all our members.

JACK MCFADDEN

Inducted October 5, 1986
Born January 9, 1927– Died June 16, 1998

Jack McFadden was an influential Music Row Manager who over saw the careers of Billy Ray Cyrus, Buck Owens, and Keith Whitley.

He was born in St Louis and worked as a theater ticket-taker and manager, a show salesman, a car salesman, and a salesman for KRAK radio, Sacramento before he finally found his way into the entertainment business.

His climb began in Stockton, California when an aspiring artist named Clyde Easley came into a shoe store looking for black boots. The store had none in his size but Mr McFadden sent him out the door with a pair of white boots, a dozen socks, and four bottles of polish. Easley returned minutes later and asked Jack McFadden to manage him, figured anyone who could sell him on boots he wasn't looking for could advance his career.

Mr. McFadden moved to Bakersfield to book Tommy Collins and met Buck Owens who would become his most stable client. In addition to serving as Owen's agent, McFadden also worked several years as the talent coordinator for Hee Haw, on which Owens served as co-host. McFadden managed Buck Owens' career for more than 30 years. He often said there was no signed contract, just a hand-shake. He also managed Keith Whitley until the singer's death in 1989, and oversaw the careers of Lorie Morgan, Sonny James, Freddie Hart, David Frizzel and Shelly West, Gene Watson, Eddy Raven, and Merle Haggard at various times.

Along the way, he received four different managers of the year awards, two of them from the Academy of Country Music. He also served on the board of the Country Music Association and had an organizational role in numerous fundraisers to battle cancer.

In 1979, he built radio station KQKK 96.7FM in Manteca, California. He sold the station prior to moving his company, McFadden & Associates, to Nashville in 1983. He was inducted into the Sacramento Western Swing Hall of Fame in 1986.

McFadden was diagnosed with Cirrhosis in 1997. He lived his final months at home under the care of Alive Hospice. "I cannot stress the comfort they

DON REESE

Inducted October 6, 2019
Born March 27, 1929-Died November 12, 1995

Don Reese was born and raised in Oklahoma. He started promoting Country Music Shows when he was 11 years old at his hometown high school. His first show was a howling success, making a whole $50.00 profit, but that was enough to give him the bug to enter the country music business.

In 1948, he formed his first Western Swing band, 'The Oklahoma Buckaroos', and broadcast daily on Radio Station KSEO in Durant, Oklahoma. He then moved his operation to KRRV Radio in Denison, Texas. He played for shows and dances all over Oklahoma, Texas, and Arkansas, as well as booking other artists such as Hank Thompson, Bob Wills, and Johnnie Lee Wills. In fact, when he disbanded, his piano man Skeet Elkins and his steel man, Harold Clampitt went to work for Bob Wills and the Texas Playboys.

In 1953, Don moved his family to Marysville, California where he worked for various musical groups. In 1954 he formed his own band and played in Northern California and Southern Oregon. He later went to work for Ole Rasmussen as Ole's bassman and singer. He worked for Ole for a couple of years and, in the meantime, he had his own D-jay show on KAGR in Yuba City. When Ole disbanded, Don formed his own group again and still worked the Northern California area playing the then famous Moonlite Ballroom for Joe and Rose Mary Roman on a regular Saturday night basis. He then went to work for the local radio stations KUBA and KMYC on a full time basis for a short time. Then he toured Northern California and Oregon with such artists as Lefty Frizzell, Tommy Collins, Freddie Hart, Smily Burnett, and others. The backup band consisted of Ollie Gray, Phillip Baugh, Tiny Gibson, and Don.

In the early 60s Don worked with various groups and still continued his radio shows in Marysville. He worked as vocal and rhythm for Okie Paul Westmoreland and others. He worked TV shows with Bob and Billy Jack Wills in Sacramento as well as Chester Smith. He later went back into full time radio and booking. He have absolutely provided,” Jo McFadden said. “It’s one of the most underestimated organizations I know of.

Jack’s death came less than two hours after Billy Ray Cyrus had left the Fan Fair stage at the Tennessee State Fairgrounds. Cyrus, had won five trophies at the TNN Music City News awards the Monday night before. He made his first Fan Fair appearance on the heels of ‘Achy Breaky Heart’ in 1992, in part because of Mr. McFadden’s tenacity. “Jack was one of the most loving, most giving people, and also a very determined person,” his widow, Jo McFadden said, “if he believed in anything, he wouldn’t let it rest until he achieved it.” Cyrus, who has since changed management, was turned down by every record company in town at least three times but McFadden continued to push until Mercury gave him a Contract.

“I think anybody would’ve been luck to have Jack McFadden for a manager, and I’m not saying that because I am prejudiced”, Jo McFadden said. “He looked after his artists like he did his children. He cared for them and he would fight for them, getting what they deserved, and he was there day and night for them”. The couple would have celebrated their 30th anniversary July 20, 1998.

Jack was survived by his wife Jo, of Nashville, sons Joe McFadden of Los Angeles, Jack McFadden Jr. of Oxnard California, daughters Lana Waitman of McMinnville, Oregon, and Ginger McFadden of Dallas, Texas.

Haggard, Roy Clark, Roy Rogers and Dale Evans, Eddsie Dean, Minnie Pearl, Grandpa Jones, George Jones, Rose Maddox, Hank Thompson, Earnest Tubbs, and the list goes on.

In 1967, Don left California and moved to Dallas, Texas, because of his parents bad health, and continued his music endeavors. He formed the first all girl western swing band to ever be in the Dallas area. He had 14 girls all told in the band and played for clubs, country clubs, and other places. His finest moment though was when he was asked for the world premier of the movie, “Chism” with John Wayne.

At the time of his induction, Don was 55 years old and did not play on a regular basis, but opened a Country Music Theater in Oklahoma where the good ol Western Swing was played once again.
